

Principles for the allocation of course seats

After the registration period, course seats are allocated based on the following priorities:

1. Students, for whom the course is mandatory
2. PhD students at the IT University
3. Students, for whom the course is part of a fixed specialization on their study programme.
(This does not apply for individual specialisations, where the courses ranks as an elective.)
4. Students on exchange programmes
5. Students, enrolled to the study programme offering the course and for whom the course is an elective
6. Students, enrolled to other study programmes and for whom the course is an elective
7. Single subject students and guest students

Allocation of seats in the last prioritised group of students will be by drawing lots.
